The Mekong starts in Tibet, crosses 4 countries, then separates in Cambodia and finally branches off in Vietnam. At the confluence of nine of the river's arms spreads the Mekong delta, also called "Vietnam's rice granary". This is a unique region mainly composed of rice fields, canals, floating markets... in one word, of water. The best way to explore this region and discover the unusual way of life of the inhabitants is by boat - this is the transportation means used by all in all its forms. Situated at the heart of the Mekong delta, Cai Be is a trading city. Its central location makes it the ideal starting point for day excursions to visit the workshops and lush orchards in the region. In the afternoon, you will transfer to Can Tho. Dinner on your own account. Overnight in Can Tho

Here, we take a bicycling ride along the banks of Ham Luong River. Late in the afternoon, we settle in with a hospitable local family for cooking demonstrations. We make authentic Vietnamese food, such as succulent Coconut Cake, zesty dipping sauce, fresh Spring Rolls and other dishes.
