Day 2: Discover Phu Quoc On Land

The tour starts off early of the day by visiting Coi Nguon Museum, where you will have a general idea of old and modern life on Phu Quoc. It is located on a small hill in Duong Dong Town, was established in 2009 by Huynh Phuoc Hue who has spent over 15 years collecting thousands of antiques and artifacts. There are 2,645 antiques made from stone, pottery, bronze and fossil wood dated from the 15th century to the early 20th century and 540 artifacts consisting of furniture, artworks and fishing tool and household appliances.

Next, let's visit the pearl cultivation farm and do some interesting shopping. Pearl Farms were built up in quite a number of facilities, which is out of surprise since Phu Quoc has been being labelled "The Pearl Island". The pearl farming industry here has been spurred on with the help of pearl farming techniques from various places around the world, thereupon, fined off pearls are considered the favorite merchandises for export, also the wanted wares to consume domestically. Thereafter, drive southward on dirty road to visit Phu Quoc Prison Historical (Coconut Prison) site, which was built in 1949-1950 by the French colonists to imprison those considered to be a threat to the government. Coconut Prison, another must-watch site in An Thoi, is historically the concentration camp since the French domination in 50s to the "Hell on earth" often-referred prison during the American war in 70s. One might be scared of recalling a long deadly period, by its nature, but letting the painful past gone, this is where you can truly witness the history of Vietnam.

Later, continue on to Sao Beach, one of the most beautiful beaches on the island with white sand and crystal-clear waters, to relax and have lunch with local cuisines. (For your information: Sao Beach is wonderful the most during the Summer time.) Sao Beach, touted as one of the best and lesser-known beaches in Vietnam, is the amazing place still boasts a fairly basic existence and is an essential trip when visiting Phu Quoc. With its marvelous white sand, green-turquoise water, swaying palm trees and jungle backdrop, Sao Beach is the “perfect postcard” one that travelers searching for. Hanging offshore further, you will find schools of small fish, needle nose fish, and even squid under the water sometimes. This is a great rendezvous to relax attracting tourists to Phu Quoc travel, indeed, Sao Beach brings pristine and innocent beauty of a pubertal girl making up on the dressing table. Later on, we shall go to Thoi Pier to experience its busy oceanfront seafood marketplace. At the end of the tour you will be taken back to your hotel.

Day 3: Islands Discovery

You will be pickup up at your hotel then be transferred to An Thoi Harbor, where you board in to get to Thom (Pineapple) Island. There likely will be only small fish to catch, but you will certainly enjoy the experience. Thom Island, which is commonly referred to as “Pineapple Island”, is the largest island in An Thoi archipelago and the second largest one of Phu Quoc as a whole. It is home to the world’s longest oversea cable car and bills itself as a premier eco-tourism destination that owns a picturesque fishing village and fine underwater zone. Then we cruise along to Mong Tay Island to swim, relax, took some pictures and just enjoyed the quiet atmosphere of the island. Mong Tay (Fingernail) Island is located at south of Phu Quoc, in the An Thoi Archipelago and is a rarely visited dream island. The beach is rather small and has just the island’s jungle behind it. The sand is magnificently white, the water clear and turquoise and the view at the archipelago is just awesome. The sea is very calm during the dry season and there are no underwater currents that making this place an ideal risk-free destination. Afterwards we head to Gam Ghi Island so you can snorkel along the coral reef.

Indulge in a delicious lunch on board and then check out the lovely beach at May Rut Island for more fun. Gam Ghi Island is an idyllic island, a part of An Thoi Archipelago which consists 17 different small islets that surrounded by coral. The beach is picturesque that make you feel being at paradise. The sand is soft powdery white and the sea is clean and turquoise in color. Even though it is a small island, but Gam Ghi is one of the most beautiful beaches in Phu Quoc and stays relatively uncovered. May Rut Island, nested in the heart of An Thoi Archipelago, is home base for endless kayaking, paddle board, snorkeling and speed boat charters. It is widely considered to be one of Phu Quoc's best "all around" island. Once arriving, visitors can enjoy a fresh shore seafood lunch, relax on a hammock, camp on the beach, and explore other nearby islands.
